Name of journal (APA):-Singh ,R.and Sharma,r. Parental Perspective of Homeschooling Children with Special Education Needs, Vol.1,(2010)

ABSTRACT

Object:-The purpose of this study is to explore the parental perspective of homeschooling children with special education needs in India. The study aims to examine the existing research on homeschooling children with special education needs and the role of parental professionals in supporting parents who choose this route in the Indian context. The study will be conducted through a literature review, focusing on articles published between 2010 and 2022 in Indian journal

Method:-This study will utilize a literature review to explore the parental perspective of homeschooling children with special education needs in India. The literature review will focus on articles published in peer-reviewed Indian journals between 2010 and 2022. The literature search will be conducted using databases such as the Indian Journal of Medical Research, Indian Journal of Pediatrics, and Google Scholar. The keywords used in the search will include "parental," "homeschooling," "special education needs," "children," "India," and "support." Inclusion criteria will be studies that focus on the parental perspective of homeschooling children with special education needs in India and the role of parental professionals in supporting parents who choose this route. Exclusion criteria will be studies that focus on homeschooling without a specific focus on children with special education needs in the Indian context.

Result:-The results of this study will be a synthesis of the existing research on the parental perspective of homeschooling children with special education needs in India. The study will provide an overview of the benefits and challenges of homeschooling children with special education needs in the Indian context, as well as the role of parental professionals in supporting parents who choose this route. The results will also identify gaps in the existing research and areas for future investigation.

Conclusion:-The findings of this study will provide valuable insights into the parental perspective of homeschooling children with special education needs in India. The study will highlight the role of parental professionals in supporting parents who choose to homeschool their children with special education needs in India. The study will also identify areas for future investigation to better understand the parental perspective of homeschooling children with special education needs in India.
