Report: Description in (min 250 to max 800 words)*

The event began with speech by Ms. Jyoti on "the critical need for enhanced voter education and engagement in the upcoming elections" The Students of B.Ed. SE, showed their creativity and imagination through posters. The students gave speech to create awareness among other students. It emphasizes the importance of reaching young and first-time voters through modern communication channels like social media and apps. The report also identifies misinformation as a major obstacle to informed voting and advocates for stronger partnerships between electoral bodies and tech companies to combat it.

Voting values often revolve around principles like fairness, equality, justice, and representation. People may prioritize issues such as healthcare, education, the economy, social equality, climate change, foreign policy, and civil rights when deciding who to vote for. Ultimately, individuals tend to vote for candidates and parties whose values align most closely with their own beliefs and priorities.

Civic duty: Recognize voting as a fundamental right and responsibility in a democratic society, allowing citizens to have a say in the governance of their country.

Power of the vote: Understand that each vote can make a difference in shaping the direction of governance and policy decisions.

Representation: Choose candidates who reflect your values and priorities, and who will advocate for your interests and those of your community.

Accountability: Hold elected officials accountable for their actions and decisions by participating in the democratic process, including voting in elections.

Impact beyond elections: Realize that voting is just one way to engage in civic life; staying informed, advocating for change, and participating in community activities also contribute to a healthy democracy.
