Report: Description in (min 250 to max 800 words)*

World Population Day is observed every year on July 11 to raise awareness about population-related issues around the world. It focuses on problems such as overpopulation, access to healthcare, family planning, gender equality, and the impact of population on development and the environment.

This day was established by the United Nations in 1989, inspired by the day the global population reached 5 billion in 1987. Each year, a specific theme is chosen to highlight key issues. In 2025, the theme is:

"Empowering young people to create the families they want in a fair and hopeful world."

The day encourages action from individuals, governments, and organizations to ensure a better future for all through informed choices and sustainable living.
